QUEENS — A Long Island woman who allegedly shot a Queens detective in the forehead with a pellet gun was charged with attempted murder Saturday, according to the NYPD.

Tiara Ferebee, 24, was arrested in connection to the Wednesday incident, in which police say she fired the pellet gun into a car full of plainclothes officers in an unmarked vehicle, striking the detective in the forehead about 5:10 p.m., police said.

Ferebee was in the passenger seat of a brown 2015 Nissan Altima traveling east on Jamaica Avenue near 168th Street, which sped away after the incident, according to police.

The detective was taken to Jamaica Hospital, where he was treated for non-life threatening injuries, police said.

Ferebee was arrested Saturday on charges including attempted murder of a police officer, assault on a police officer with a deadly weapon, criminal possession of a loaded firearm, and reckless endangerment, police said.
